It might seem easy to teach youngsters good manners such as saying "please" and "thank you," but how can you teach them to "turn off," "unplug" and "reuse?" Those are just a few of the buzz words to living a greener life. This month, Piedmont Parent is giving away copies of "I'm Turning Green," ($7.95) a book that will teach young children to make a positive impact on our planet.

Everyday lessons on living a greener life are sprinkled throughout the book, written by Rebecca Mattano, as the main character, a child, slowly turns green from head to toe. To win, go to www.piedmontparent.com and answer our reader poll question about teens and tweens.
